With more than 30 years of experience in medical technology and health care Tilo Stolzke (born in 1959) has specialized in strategic concepts and their transfer into practise, in the structured growth of medtec companies and practical implementation of sales and marketing.

After having graduated as a biomedical engineer for medical technology he has demonstrated his sales skills and customer orientation with Picker International (later GE) as a sales representative.

1989 changing to Dräger Medical, he was promoted in different business units from Project Manager and Marketing Manager to Head of Product Marketing taking responsibility for the complete international process of customer and cost oriented product generation and marketing.

At TERAKLIN AG, an innovative Start Up Company he built up the marketing structure and was the international sales director, building up the distribution network and sales structure. In this time he got lots of experience with due diligence and financing of new companies.

At sananet he is focussed on the founding, financing and growth process of companies. Market analysis and a widespread network are transferred into practical support to make your company more successful. The goal is supporting you in gaining more customers, turnover and profit. Specialize in medical start-up and mid-size companies; leading the company in business, sales & marketing and strategic aspects; negotiating and signing business collaboration with international strategic partners; specialized in bringing companies from seed level to sales and marketing and from there to international business.

Market analysis and successful international implementation of sales and marketing are the strongpoint.

Philosophy of sananet

Based on our management experience in the medical industry and healthcare environment we consider the success factors to be focus on market success and increasing turnover and contribution margin rather than cost savings and general downgrading.

A clear strategy based on excellent knowledge of the market and customer needs is the core. A good international network helps further. This will ensure a structured process to develop market-driven products and implementation of successful marketing and distribution structures.

The basis of all actions is a longstanding, loyal partnership with our clients. As we have outstanding practical experience in the processes, we do not perform theoretical analysis but give clear recommendation which, if the client wants, we are able to put into action ourselves.

As the service we offer is always linked to the subject of market success and achievement of goals, we as well agree on precise targets for each project
